Drastic reduction in the variants of pressure vessels from 150 quantity to as low as 13 quantity. My Main Aim of the project was to standardize the pressure vessel, one of the key component of large reciprocating compressors. This project has not only helped in dropping variants but it will also derive other simultaneous advantages like reduction in inventory carrying cost which will also induce higher productivity, better quality, faster availability of parts and thus machine and major derivatives will be higher customer satisfaction. Most significant part of project was: use of international design standards like ASME, API,NPI which surely make design safe and good quality.
